THE HOME MISSIONS COUNCIL

ONE of the great forward steps in our homeland work was the organization of the Home Missions Council. This brings together for mutual conference and co-operation the executive officers and directors of twenty-four societies or boards engaged in missionary effort for our country. Fifteen denominations are federated in this body.

It has just held its annual meeting in New York in the Presbyterian Building. Dr. Charles L. Thompson, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, and a brilliant leader in this common work, presided at the meeting. The program included a thorough discussion of various important features of the homeland work.

"Changed Problems of Church Building Agencies," by Secretary C. H. Richards; "Methods of Home Missionary Administration," by Secretary Robert Forbes; "The Neglected Fields Survey," by Secretary L. C. Barnes; and "The Revival of Interest in the Rural Church," by Secretary Wilson, were among the topics considered.

Secretary Moffett of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions gave an interesting review of "Work for the Indians," which was supplemented by an address by Mr. R. G. Valentine of the Indian Department in Washington.

The climax of the meeting, however, came in the hour when the Council of Women for Home Missions held a joint session with the Home Missions Council. Dr. C. L. Thompson read the report of the Joint Committee of these co-operating bodies on "Home Mission Work," presenting a plan for a campaign in the autumn of this year to arouse all our Protestant churches to a new interest in evangelizing our own country, and to enlist the enthusiastic effort of pastors, laymen, women and young people, in this great task of Christian patriotism. There is great need of this in view of the swarming multitudes pouring in upon our shores, and the many thousands outside of our churches. But this campaign is to be quite unlike others of recent date. It is not contemplated to have deputations of brilliant speakers visit fifty or sixty great centers to address great mass meetings. There is to be, instead, a "Home Mission Week," of simultaneous meetings, in which each church shall focus thought and feeling on the religious needs of the ninety millions of people in our own land, the varied forms of home missionary effort, and the urgent necessity of having every member of every church engaged in helping on this great work as God has prospered each. The pastor is to have the place of honor in this campaign. A program is to be prepared showing how the two Sundays and the evenings of the intervening week may be used to illumine and inspire the people. The week selected is Nov. 17-24, shortly after the election and just before Thanksgiving. If all the churches take hold of it as is expected, it will be a week of measureless blessing for America.

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Hubert C. Herring, D.D., General Secretary; Rev. Herman F. Swartz, Associate Secretary: Willis E. Lougee, Treasurer; Miss Miriam L. Woodberry, Secretary Woman's Department.

Dr. Eversz, of Chicago, is recovering from a protracted illness. His double duty as teacher in Chicago Seminary and Superintendent of our German Department lays upon him very heavy obligations, and the officers of the Society are casting about for some way to bring him relief.

Many Sunday-schools availed themselves of our offer to send material for use in making January a home mission month, and not a few have already sent in remittances. We are hoping that the custom of using some portion of the year for special educational effort along home mission lines will become common.

Four illustrated charts, each 28 by 42 inches, setting forth the leading features of the Society's fourfold work, have just been published. We are confident that they will be found of great value in quickening interest. The price is 25 cents per set on paper, 50 cents on cloth with wood rollers.

Thirty men, the leaders and experts of "The Men and Religion Forward Movement," were assembled in council. A question arose as to the right of Home Missions to so conspicuous a place as it holds in the six "messages" of the Movement. A challenge was put up to the company to know how many entered the Christian life either through the ministry of home mission stations or from the families of ministers with home missionary records. About half the company promptly confessed to Christian birth in such surroundings. For example:

Fred B. Smith, campaign leader, was brought out of an aversion to all things religious into his present intense Christian activity through the agency of a little Congregational home missionary church in the Middle West. This is the reason why he wants the quartet so often to sing "The Little Brown Church in the Vale."

W. A. Pearce, the leader in Bible study, was gathered in with the whole of his father's family by a little home missionary enterprise in Arkansas.

Raymond Robbins, while a miner in Alaska, was brought to Christ and started in Christian work by missionaries.

Charles Stelzle, on the other hand, is a product of the city missionary church.

And so on down through the list.

Home Missions is justified by her children.

The Executive Committee of the Federal Council, at its Pittsburgh meeting on December 12, decided to take immediate and active steps to secure an Executive Secretary. The appointment of such an official was decided upon two years ago, but thus far the right man has not been found. Pending such appointment, Dr. Macfarland, the Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Council, was designated as Acting Executive Secretary. Plans are on foot for aggressive effort during 1912. The quadrennial convention of the Council will be held at Chicago in December.

THE CHURCH OF THE OPEN COUNTRY

THE Missionary Education Movement has just issued a most significant volume with the above title and from the pen of Rev. Warren H. Wilson, Ph.D., addressed to the perplexing problem of the farmers' church.

Dr. Wilson has a philosophy. Hitherto every country pastor has secretly believed his to be a "peculiar field." Dr. Wilson proclaims that these supposed peculiarities are substantially common to the whole genus. It is a vast step forward to develop a theory. Scientists used to doubt whether the mutual attraction of masses was a phenomenon outside of the terrestrial realms, but when Newton succeeded in formulating a satisfactory law of gravitation, all thinkers were speedily willing to grant its application to the entire stellar universe, even to Neptune before that planet was seen. Dr. Wilson proclaims a philosophy which promises to bring a very simple order out of the chaos of rural churches. His interpretation of the situation is simply this: The country church reflects the economic and social condition of its constituency, and there have been, or are, the following four conditions:

REV. WARREN H. WILSON, PH.D.

1. The first man on the land was The Pioneer, a man of personal prowess, independent, incapable of team work, seeking his individual good, his own soul's salvation, who because of his habitual isolation was responsive to the periodic emotional upheavals of the fervid revival meeting. The pioneer wants preaching and singing, but his life has no place for the many organized activities of the church; even social life was in large measure judged a "sin." This is the individualist church—an aggregation, not an organization.

2. The second state was that of The Established Household. This was the dominant rural condition in the settled regions during the last century. Here the family group was well-nigh perfected. Whittier's "Snowbound" is its poem. Each household competed with all the rest in getting a living. The family and personal morals of the typical farming household were of the most beautiful and exalted character.

The father taught the sons the art of agriculture, the mother imparted domestic skill to the daughters, every family was as good as every other. The family altar flourished. This stage of rural life put the Sunday-school in the church, the young people's society blossomed, and the women's aid and missionary societies came into being; in some places the church even thought of boys' departments. The church took in the whole family. This is the dear old church we were trained to love, and whose destruction is imminent. It is the endeavor to retain this church that actuates so many who think they are trying to solve the rural problem.

The author might have added, for the benefit of those who labor with the city church, that multitudes of small communities have within the hundred years grown into great cities, and that what many devout minds call "the city problem" is only their endeavor to perpetuate in the fundamentally different conditions of the modern great city the type of church evolved in the country during a patriarchial era. But new wine won't stay in old bottles.

3. The third development in the rural, social, and economic life appears with The Speculative Stage. The old household farmer was a miner rather than an agriculturist. He dug out of the land its native fertility, and kept up the drain until the ground was unfruitful. Then he must look for better fields, and abandoned farms began to appear, properties were put on the market, a money valuation of the old home became necessary. Now for the first time the farmer began to think of his land and its improvements, not as a home but as having money value. Soon farm land began to rise in price even though with no increase in fruitfulness. Many land owners sold out for large sums and moved to town. Others leased their farms to tenants, and the propertyless renter appeared. The absentee landlord thus becomes a serious factor in the rural situation, and by the same move, much of the finest brain and character flows away from the fields to the towns, with the consequent loss of material for able leadership. This condition meant ready money for many farmers, and large giving became a possibility. Giving is the moral medicine for the man who values things in terms of money. This period of fluidity must necessarily be brief, but while it lasts the church in many places is almost wrecked.

4. The speculative stage is being rapidly supplanted by the now emerging Organization Era, based upon organized action and scientific agriculture. Dr. Wilson believes this is the destination of American agriculture. Such communities have already appeared well developed on the Pacific Coast, and the elements are found in very many places. The writer would make the rural church both the leader and the beneficiary of this new era.

The practical message of the volume is built upon this conception of the changes of rural life. The country church should jealously conserve the good features of the earlier days, such as the preaching and evangelism of the pioneer period, the family morality and care for the whole household of the succeeding stage, and the giving and enterprise of the speculative age. To this should be added the co-operative religion suited to the dawning conditions.

The author then reviews the rural school, showing the bearing of this evolution on the various educational institutions, finally stating that the great business of the teacher is to idealize country life.

Recreation, both as a moral cause and effect, is next considered, and it appears that in the new-organized country the church may well be the guardian of the values lying in the play life of the community. Team work is emphasized as the chief moral feature needed, and it is drilled in by wisely-conducted play. From it come the concerted moral movements of the rural populations, as already shown in the fight upon the liquor traffic.

A specially significant chapter bears upon co-operation and federation. Here old-style sectarianism gets its deserts. And because of this chapter, the book may not be loved by certain dear souls. The goal is, "one community, one church."

The co-operative program is presented as being able, under the leadership or at least the inspiration of the church, to do away entirely with rural poverty. It can be done. The church's treatment of the "marginal man" will measure its success.

Then follows a fine setting forth of numerous instances of church efficiency, with a sketch of the methods involved. A good bibliography puts a finishing touch on the whole work.

This is a book which every pastor should think through, but it should especially be read by the older men in the rural churches who, as officers, are controlling the ministrations of their organizations. To most it will be in the nature of a welcomed self-revelation; to some others it will give an inward pain—but then it always did hurt to move stiff joints.

HOW ONE OVERCHURCHED VILLAGE FOUND RELIEF

By Rev. N. L. Packard, Lincoln, Neb.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—It is entirely possible that the editor, being a member of the human family, feels a peculiar satisfaction in the arrangement described by Mr. Packard because it is a testimony to the catholic spirit of the communion to which he belongs. But he wishes to say with all earnestness of emphasis that The Congregational Home Missionary Society is more than willing to co-operate heartily and cheerfully in similar efforts elsewhere where the surviving organization is to be a church of another communion. We wish every small community knew how great would be the blessing of escape from sectarian strife.]

THERE are many discussions in these days concerning church union and church federation. Liberty, Nebraska, is giving to the world a demonstration of the fact that people of different churches may profitably come together as one band of worshipers. Liberty is a village of four hundred American people, with a good country constituency. It is situated twelve miles east of Wymore, on the Denver and Kansas City line of the Burlington System. The people have shown their love for "light" by placing an electric burner at each street intersection.

Five American Protestant churches have sought to shed abroad the gospel light into the spiritual darkness round about. Some of these lights were not sufficiently supplied with oil for continuous and bright burning. A stronger central light was called for by some plan of church combination. But no two churches were quite ready to be swallowed up by the third, and at last it was proposed that the Methodist Episcopal, Presbyterian, and United Presbyterian churches disband and all unite in forming a Congregational church. This met with general favor, and Home Missionary Superintendent S. I. Hanford, of Lincoln, was asked to send some representative to visit Liberty. Accordingly General Missionary N. L. Packard spent Sunday, April 30, 1911, with these people, preaching morning and evening to the combined congregations in the United Presbyterian church building. He was asked to take pastoral care of the flock until the union was effected and a regular pastor secured. The state board lent their missionary for the purpose. The congregations have steadily increased in spite of extreme heat, flood, storm, and cold.

The business matters relative to the consolidation were managed by a joint committee of nine men, three from each church. These men were eminently fitted for the difficult task required of them. There were no end of puzzling questions of worship, church property, and ecclesiastical matters to be considered. But the patient waiting upon God by pastor, committee, and people was rewarded by a steady cementing of the tie of mutual fellowship, under the common headship of Jesus Christ. After several months of subjection to outside criticism while the preparatory stage was passing, the date November 26, 1911, was chosen for the assenting to the church covenant. The denominational representatives of the three disbanding churches were upon the ground, and all gave their hearty endorsement to the new movement. Two church buildings and a manse were turned over at comparatively small cost, and the permanent place of worship will soon be easily decided.

For the services of Sunday, November 26, the opera house was secured to accommodate the crowd. Some three hundred people were present, and one hundred and sixty-five entered into church covenant. A fine orchestra and choir helped materially to make the occasion a beautiful one. Mr. Packard had charge of the service and preached a short sermon, after extending to each member the right hand of fellowship. On Monday afternoon, the 27th, the Council Manual was adopted with some amendments, the officers were elected by ballot, and the church prepared to do business for the Master. A Recognition Council has been called to recognize the new church and introduce it to the Congregational fellowship.

The significance of the new situation is evidenced by the fact that while each of the old churches had a Sunday attendance of scarcely more than a score, the present attendance is one hundred and fifty. While each of the three Sabbath-schools had a regular attendance of about thirty, the new school exceeds one hundred and sixty for the recent Sundays.

THE NEGLECTED FIELDS SURVEY

THE tour of the secretarial deputation appointed to inaugurate the Neglected Fields Survey, was completed December 20. Arrangements are now in progress for the detailed survey of fifteen Western states to ascertain just what is the religious condition of each community. The results of this Survey will be published some time next fall. They will constitute the most notable home mission volume ever issued.

We quote from an article in The Congregationalist of January 20, the following:

While positive judgment on most aspects of the situation must wait for the fuller induction of facts which the Survey will furnish, there are certain clear impressions gained by the deputation in its long tour which are not likely to be seriously modified. Among these is that of a distinct and serious

LACK OF RELIGIOUS PRIVILEGES IN RURAL COMMUNITIES.

In every conference there was strong testimony on this point. Particularly in the states where frontier conditions are largely in the past, such as Nebraska, Kansas, and southern Minnesota, it was found that scores of communities of considerable size are separated from church services by a distance which is practically prohibitory. In addition there are hundreds of rural communities which, being dependent on the irregular service of a non-resident minister, too often ill-equipped, are only less destitute than those entirely lacking such ministry. This condition is made the more serious because of the polyglot character of the population. Families and neighborhoods speaking one language are surrounded by the larger community speaking another, and are unable either to provide a church of their own or to share that of their neighbors. Then too, sectarian traditions, and particularly the gulf between Roman Catholics and Protestants, further complicate the case. As a result of it all, there is beyond a doubt a widespread and ominous failure of organized Christianity to reach the scattered dwellers on Western farms. The home mission boards have upon them no obligation so pressing as that of repairing this lack. They need to lay co-operative plans for reaching unoccupied territory. They need to re-adjust and strengthen their methods of rural work. They need to give the whole subject increased prominence in their counsels and appeals. This does not mean that the aggregate of rural churches in the West is small. In Kansas, for instance, at least one-fifth of the evangelical churches are in the open country away from the railroad. Add to these the churches in small towns, essentially rural in their constituency, and the total is very large. But the areas are so vast, and the population so predominantly agricultural, that a great portion is still unreached. Children grow from infancy to majority without gospel influences save as a limping and intermittent Sunday-school and a rare sermon bring Christ to their thoughts.

In a much more extreme form it was evident that there are

UNMET NEEDS AMONG WORKERS IN EXCEPTIONAL VOCATIONS.

Most prominent here are the lumbermen. In Wisconsin, Minnesota, Idaho, and Washington, a population of several hundred thousand are directly dependent upon the lumber industry. A large percentage are single men or men separated from their families for long periods. The conditions of labor prevent permanent residence, and often are directly promotive of vicious habits. The "lumber jack" is proverbially thriftless and reckless, when not something worse. A lumber town is crude and its population fluctuating. It therefore naturally results that religious work is carried on, whether in camp or town, against great odds and with little visible outcome. The bulk of the lumbermen in camp are under no religious influence. The sawmill towns are often but little better. Here, as in so many vocations, the producers who are nearest nature's sources are less privileged than those farther away. The home mission boards are not likely to be able to meet this need in adequate degree. The cost is so great, and the type of worker required so rare, that only a limited expectation of enlarging present work can be indulged. The ideal solution of the problem would be a "lumbermen's mission," carried on under joint auspices of the denominational boards and the Young Men's Christian Association. Are there not men whose fortunes have been drawn from the forests of our land who will make this possible?

Of similar sort are the unmet needs among miners. They are less pronounced so far as lack of church privileges is concerned. As to the proportion of godless men and vice, presumably there is not much difference. In great mining centers like the Cripple Creek district, the Coeur d'Alene, and the Black Hills, there are many churches. But their task is hard and their hold small. The great need is such equipment and leadership as shall enable them to emphasize the social side of their ministry. In smaller outlying camps there are often no churches at all, or else buildings with no preachers. The proposed Survey will render an invaluable service by furnishing a comprehensive view of the whole situation in mining towns.

Here and there in the round of conferences glimpses were had of groups of foreigners without organized Christian effort. These were usually of nationalities but slightly represented in our country—Greek, Japanese, Chinese, Spanish. In one painful and reproachful case, a community of three thousand Finns was found to have no vestige of religious work among them. In most of these cases it should be possible to supply the present lack.

was copiously and earnestly discussed. So great, however, was the difficulty of agreeing upon a definition, and so divergent were the judgments of workers as to actual conditions, that no comprehensive statements can be made until prolonged study has been given to more ample data. That there is over-churching, of course goes without saying. But on all questions as to amount, nature, cause, and cure, it was very difficult to get a consensus of opinion. A few impressions may be recorded. It is plain that in most of the states but little effort has been made to bring about acquaintance and establish mutual confidence among home mission leaders. As a result each man's work has been largely unrelated to, and often at cross purposes with, that of men in other denominations. It was evident that the various conferences went far toward clearing the air and establishing a basis for closer relations in the future. All will depend on how they are followed up.

Attention was repeatedly called to the fact that over-churching is often over-building rather than over-manning. The number of church spires in a town is not a conclusive indication of the facts. The Western boom spirit which sees a coming metropolis in every hamlet has naturally crowded forward church building enterprises. Add to this the fact that the coolest and most experienced are liable to misjudge the future in a region where population is so fluid in its elements, and you have another cause of overbuilding. Then the multiplicity of tongues and the strong tendency of the Teutonic peoples toward sectarian subdivisions has contributed to the situation. One can easily get a mental picture of a town of a thousand people, with two English-speaking Protestant churches, a Roman Catholic church, two Swedish churches of different sects, a German church, and a Norwegian church, making a total of seven—patently too many and yet perfectly explainable. The English churches were built before it could be known that the place would become so largely foreign-speaking. The foreign churches were organized to meet the demand for the mother tongue, and duplicated in one nationality or more because of irreconcilable antagonisms springing out of the past. Every case, however, is not so simple. Frequently the English-speaking churches have multiplied through mere sectarian zeal and local pride. But now, compelled by necessity or by a sense of the proprieties, many of the weaker ones stand unsupplied or are dependent on the service of a non-resident minister, so that five church buildings often mean but two or three ministers. This, as far as it goes, is a step toward a cure. But the various organizations remain, each a discouragement to the other, and the unused buildings discredit the cause they represent. A long, vigorous, and intelligent course of treatment will be required before the West is cured of its sectarian ills. It was refreshing to hear of various localities which are addressing themselves to the reduction of sectarian inflammation. In one case three denominations disbanded and united in a church of another denomination not previously represented in the community. In another place three churches were arranging for federated work and worship under a single man. In still another, a community of seven hundred people having resolutely set themselves to have but a single church, are enabled to command the services of a talented young minister, the fellowship man in his class, who would be entirely unwilling to work if he were compelled to compete with other churches. The movement revealed in the above cases will become epidemic ere long if properly fostered by church bodies and home mission societies.

GIFTS FOR THE KING

The Sunday-school at Danielson, Connecticut, in sending us a remittance, furnishes also, through its pastor, Rev. C. H. Barber, the following account of the method by which the money was raised, which we are sure will be helpful to others.

We had a special Christmas service by the Sunday-school. The church was decorated with white. We had a white altar

DINNER GIVEN TO NEGLECTED FIELDS SURVEY DEPUTATION BY THE ASSOCIATION OF CHRISTIAN WORKERS AMONG ORIENTALS, CHINATOWN, SAN FRANCISCO

Chinese, Japanese, Hindus, and Koreans represented of incense on the platform. All the members of the school, and also of the church and congregation, were asked to bring "white gifts for the King." White envelopes with those words printed on them were given out to all who cared to participate. Almost two hundred envelopes were brought in, and the total of the money was almost eighty dollars. About seventy dollars of this was for the work of four of our benevolent societies. Some of the classes selected the society or the object to which their contributions should go, and others left it for the executive committee of the Sunday-school to decide. The white service was dignified and impressive, and added to the gifts of money were gifts or pledges of service "for the King."

THE PILGRIMS OF IOWA*

FIVE years ago, when Dr. T. O. Douglass laid down the burden which for a quarter of a century he had carried as Secretary of the Iowa Home Missionary Society, he was accustomed to say to his friends that he had but two ambitions before him. One was to see the national Home Missionary Society out of debt, the other to see Iowa College on a firm basis of endowment. Not many months passed before the effort to secure the latter was under way and the Doctor in the midst of it. He had scarcely time to catch his breath after its successful termination before he was drafted into the Together Campaign for six strenuous months, which resulted in freeing not only the Home Missionary Society, but two sister societies also, from the burden of debt. All who love the kingdom of Christ owe to Dr. Douglass a debt of gratitude for his notable share in these two achievements. But the debt is increased by the book which he has just published, telling the story of the Congregational churches of Iowa. It is a carefully compiled, racily written, admirably proportioned account of a piece of local history of the sort which coming generations will increasingly prize. But it is much more than that. It deals with

of our denominational life. In Iowa, for the first time outside New England, Congregationalism was founded in the spirit of self-reliance. All its earlier westward movements were under the shadow of self-distrust. Though the obligation of planting churches among those who were settling in the states of the West was recognized and met as by no other denomination, there was the continual feeling, sometimes latent and sometimes expressed, that it would be as well if those churches should be allied with other denominations. The results may be easily imagined, and are written large on the Congregationalism of the Middle and Central Western States. By the time the Iowa Band began its work in 1843 (some beginnings having been made in the territory for ten years prior), it was dawning upon the minds of many that there must be a radical change of policy. Congregationalism must seek not only to propagate Christianity, but incidentally itself. This new temper appealed to the eleven young men who formed the Band. They laid their plans to build and develop in the state of their adoption not Presbygationalism but Congregationalism. Their decision has been an influential and in some sense a controlling factor in all the subsequent life of the denomination. And through all the years intervening the Iowa churches have been moving forward on the large lines marked out by the pioneers—loyal to their own fellow-workers throughout the nation, devoted to the principles which created Congregationalism, but generous in appreciation of other communions and in co-operation with them. It is this unique piece of history which Dr. Douglass has to tell, and it is told in his own inimitable way.

But the book has another interest, scarcely second to the first. It is the unconscious revelation of its writer's ministry in the gospel of Jesus Christ. For forty years, as pastor and superintendent, Dr. Douglass has been identified with the theme of which he writes. Naturally his book is a labor of love, how much so only those who know its author and his capacity for loyal and self-forgetful devotion can understand. To Iowa Congregationalism he has given his life. Through long years of ceaseless labor, multiplied anxieties, and fruitful achievements, he has wrought on her behalf. He cannot write of her churches and pastors, her sons and daughters, as a mere annalist. Here and there through the pages there is the flash of some humorous memory or a broken note of sorrow or the glow of an ardent admiration. The writer has succeeded in keeping himself inconspicuous so far as formal mention is concerned. We are very glad it was impossible for him to prevent the book from being colored by the warm tones of his own gracious ministry and loving spirit. We hope "The Pilgrims of Iowa" will have wide reading beyond the circle of those personally related to the events of which it treats. We wish all our young ministers might catch its spirit. We thank Dr. Douglass for writing it, and pray that abundance of peace and joy may be his through all the years and tasks which lie before him.

HOME MISSION HELPS FOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPICS

The best thing we have for use in connection with the Christian Endeavor topic for February 25—"The Home Missionary Whose Life Has Most Inspired Me"—is the book by Don O. Shelton, entitled, "Heroes of the Cross in America." It presents in a brief and readable way the life and work of David Brainerd, John Mason Peck, Marcus Whitman, John L. Dyer, and Joseph Ward. This book is illustrated, and is suitable for general reading or for class use.

Read also "Winning the Oregon Country," by John T. Faris; an account of the stirring times preceding and during the settlement of the Northwest, with the prominent and heroic part taken by home missionaries.

In "Servants of the King," by Robert E. Speer, you will find brief sketches of two or three workers in the home field.

We can furnish any of the books named above. Price in cloth binding, 50 cents; in paper, 35 cents.

"Joseph Ward" is the title of a leaflet published by our Society, treating briefly of the life and labors of this home missionary pastor, teacher, and statesman, who went under commission of the Home Missionary Society to South Dakota when that state was practically unknown except to army officers and traders, afterward building a college almost without material. This leaflet will be sent free upon application.

If you have access to a file of The Home Missionary magazine, you will be interested in the article in the issue for April, 1906, entitled, "Samuel J. Mills, Home Missionary Statesman." We are not able to supply this number.

For any of the above, write to The Congregational Home Missionary Society, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City. We shall be glad to send also the very complete list of helps we have prepared for the April missionary topic.

NEW LEAFLETS

We have the following new publications to announce this month:

"A Crowning Achievement." By Rev. James L. Hill, D.D. A very attractive leaflet on early exploits of the Iowa Band, by the son of one of the members of the Band. It is well illustrated, and is adapted for general reading.

A new edition of the joint handbook of our seven missionary agencies, entitled, "Congregational Missionary Societies," is just off the press. It sets forth very briefly the work of each society, describes the Apportionment Plan, etc. Just the thing to aid in keeping in mind the distinction between the different denominational missionary societies and the lines of effort carried on by each. Suitable for general distribution. Send to any of the societies for as many copies as you can use.

The attractive collection envelope prepared especially for Sunday-schools in connection with their special study of the work of our Society during January, is adapted for use among children wherever money is being collected for home missionary work. The size is 3½ by 6½ inches, with a slot for the insertion of coins. Printed in two colors. Furnished in quantities as desired.

Any of the above will be sent by The Congregational Home Missionary Society, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

The date of the annual meeting of The Congregational Home Missionary Society has been fixed as May 7-9, 1912. As announced editorially in the December magazine, this meeting is to be held at Toledo, Ohio, at the invitation of our churches in that city. An inspiring program is being prepared, and we hope for a large attendance. Further mention of special features, etc., will be made later in these columns.

Temporal blessings make us joy in life; spiritual blessings make us also joy in death.—Ivan Panin.

Nine months of our fiscal year have passed, and in spite of the most strenuous efforts, we were obliged to begin the calendar year 1912 with a deficit of about $4,500. We are looking forward to the closing of our fiscal year March 31st with not a little anxious thought, for not only must we meet our current expenses for the three months, but in addition make up this deficit of $4,500. We know that some of our friends are realizing this need, and there are some signs of encouragement to report, among them the following:

First: The fact that a large number of our Sunday-schools are having home missions presented during the month of January as never before.

Second: The Christian Endeavor Societies are responding splendidly to the appeal to contribute $10,000 for ork among immigrants. A large number of the illustrated charts showing tl. four departments of home work are being called for by these societies, many of which are pledging themselves to raise a certain amount before April 1st.

Third: There is a gratifying increase in gifts received early in January from churches, two striking examples being Valley City, North Dakota—which gave $83.39 last year, increasing to $175 this year in spite of the drought—and the upper Montclair, New Jersey, church, which increased its gift from $308.75 last year to $499.58 this year.

These are among the encouraging features, and if our individual friends will renew their gifts which they were good enough to send last year, we hope to come to the first of April with all bills paid.

AMERICA, SWEET LAND OF LIBERTY

A HOME MISSION EXERCISE FOR CHILDREN

By Louise M. Houghton, Worcester, Mass.

Characters

Six to ten children as American children, in ordinary dress.

Ten children as "Little Immigrants," in costume, to represent

Polish girl
Syrian boy
Bohemian girl
Greek boy
Swedish girl
German girl
Slovak boy
Italian girl
Russian Jewish boy
French girl.

Properties

Gateway, seven to seven and a half feet high (to be placed in center of platform) with an arch above it. Four 10-inch letters, "C. H. M. S.," to be placed on the arch.

Bunting to drape the arch and gateway.

Laurel or something green to decorate the gates.

Ten American flags, and flags of all the nations represented, so that each child may carry one.

Costumes

POLISH GIRL.—Long, faded dress; short apron; dark kerchief on head.

SYRIAN BOY.—Old suit with old sweater; coarse stockings and shoes; Turkish fez.

BOHEMIAN GIRL.—Dark woolen dress, very plain; short apron; white kerchief on head.

GREEK BOY.—Long khaki trousers; old coat; coarse shoes.

SWEDISH GIRL.—White waist; red skirt, black apron, striped; pointed white cap.

GERMAN GIRL.—Red dress; black corselet; small white apron; white bonnet with strings.

SLOVAK BOY.—Blue overalls ending above shoes; old coat; red neckerchief; old woolen cap; coarse gray stockings and shoes.

ITALIAN GIRL.—White waist; black skirt; red corselet and shawl over head; white stockings; old shoes.

RUSSIAN JEWISH BOY.—Old suit of clothes, too large, with old tie; coarse stockings; old shoes.

FRENCH GIRL.—Old dress, outgrown, not so poor as some of the others.

Note.—These costumes are only suggestive. Any old clothes too large or too small, very shabby, will do. These should be varied with different sorts of caps, aprons, and stockings.

Action

The American children, each bearing a flag, march in from the back of the room to the platform to the music of and singing, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," taking their places at either side and back of the gateway. When in their places on the platform, let the "immigrants" enter, bearing their flags (while the others are still singing), from two sides of the room, the two lines crossing each other on platform, and take their places across the front of the platform in front of the gateway, the gates now being closed.

Let them stand so a moment after this "song of the nations" is finished, then let the "immigrants" sing their song—"To a Land of Strangers"—having the "Americans" respond with the chorus after each verse. After this song, let the "immigrants" give their recitations, telling why they have come to this country.

One of the "Americans" now comes forward, stands a little in front of the "immigrants," and addresses them with the recitation telling what the C. H. M. S. is and what it will do for them. As she comes to the words "So we hold the gate open," the "Americans" open the gates.

After an instant's pause, at the chord of "America" on the piano, let the "immigrants" turn and pass through the gates, leaving their flags in the supports of the arch, and march off the platform, each American child accompanying one of the "little immigrants." Let the audience sing "America" as it is being played and until all the children are off the platform.

HOW THE EXERCISE WAS PRESENTED IN ONE CHURCH

Note.—Introduce as much marching at the beginning and end as the room will allow. It will be very effective if there can be a large chorus of children back of the platform to sing the "song of the nations" as those in the exercise are marching in.

Recitations*

Polish Girl (with Russian flag).—In Poland all we had to eat was soup and black bread, but sometimes we didn't have anything. "In America," people said, "is always much to eat," so my father brought us here. But we never see him much, because he works under the ground in a mine. My sister works all day in a sweatshop making petticoats, but we have lots to eat now, so I'm glad we came.

Syrian Boy (with Turkish flag).—When my brother went to the mission school in Syria, a missionary told him he could learn much knowledge in America, so we came. He is going to work in my uncle's store, where they sell rugs and laces and all things like what we have in Syria. I am going to school, and he will go evenings, so we can learn to be smart like the missionary who came to help us. Then we will go back and tell the people there what we learned, because everybody in Syria can't come to America, you know.

Bohemian Girl (with Austrian flag).—I am glad now I came from Bohemia, because we found my father here, where he works in a stockyard. My mother had to work hard for a long time to get money to come with, and my father sent us some, too. Then the ship was so crowded and dirty when we came that we were sick all the time and thought we would never reach America at all. But now my mother she is no more sad, but smiles on me and says, "Ah, Margarita, it is worth all the hard times we had to get money to come with."

Greek Boy.—My brother work for my uncle in his candy store in America for a long time. He say America it is beautiful, so my father sold all our things in Greece and brought us to this country. Now my father owns a pushcart, and every day he sells all his fruit and brings to my mother lots of money. He says that by and by he will buy a store and sell candy and fruit, and when I am big I can help him sell. I love Greece, we used to have such fun there, but I like America too.

SWEDISH GIRL.—My uncle and auntie lived in America many years, but my uncle worked on a ship and came to our home sometimes to tell us what a fine place America was to live in. My auntie she has gold rings and a gold watch and is rich. They eat white bread and meat three times a day, and all we had in Sweden was black bread and onions. So we came to live on a farm so we could be rich, and some day I will have gold rings like my auntie.

GERMAN GIRL.—When we lived in Germany my sister could not find much work, and the pay was so small she could not live on it, so we came here. She works for an awful rich lady now, taking care of her baby. I have to live with my aunt, but I can go to the rich lady's house sometimes to see my sister. She earns a lot of money now, and by and by we will send for my mother and little Hans and Gretchen. I will like America better when I see my mother.

SLOVAK BOY (with Russian flag).—Oh, this big America! It is too strange here, and I am afraid of all these people because they do not look like the people in Hungary and they wear such funny clothes. But my father says I would have to go in the army when I got old enough if we stayed there, and my brother died in the army. My father can say what he wants to anybody and he is free here, so I must learn to love America.

ITALIAN GIRL.—To America from Italy we have just now come so my father could get money. He will buy a hurdy-gurdy and will play to the rich people, and sometimes I can go with him to get the money. The rich people live in lovely houses, and I wish I could go in one once just to see how it looks inside. Our house it is so small and only one room has a window in it. My brother will work in the streets and we will have many boarders till we, too, are rich.

RUSSIAN JEWISH BOY.—"Ah, Jakie," my fadder said, "in America ees much liberty, much schools, much happiness, and great money." That is why we came. We will live in New York, and my fadder will keep a clothing store, my sister will work in a store, too, where they sell jewelry, and I will go to school so I can be smart to run a store like my fadder sometime.

FRENCH GIRL.—In France my father died and my mother was very poor. We had to sleep on straw on the floor and work very hard, and even then we could hardly get along. My sister knew how to make dresses, and one American lady told her she could find plenty of work to make dresses in America, so my sister and I left France and came here. She has been a long time finding good work, and she would come back to the dirty dark room where we lived and cry every night and say she wished she had never left France. But now she has work sewing in a store, and she says soon we will move to a better place, and then when she has saved enough money we will send for my brothers so they can come here, too.

RECITATION ON C. H. M. S.—We are glad that you have all come to America, the sweet land of liberty. She has all the things you came for. Johanna, you will find plenty to eat here; and Andrew, it is true that your father will be free. Your sister will find work, Frieda; and Rosie, we will listen to and love your father's hurdy-gurdy.

There is in America a society with a very long name which will help you find the schools and liberty and work which you are looking for. It is The Congregational Home Missionary Society. But there is another thing it will help you find, and it is the most important thing, too. It will show you that God is America's king, and because He reigns is the reason that America is a sweet land of liberty.

Through this gate The Congregational Home Missionary Society will show you where you may learn to know God, our king, for it will provide churches for you and ministers to preach to you in your own languages. So we hold the gate open for you and invite you to pass through, for we know that on the other side you will find the things you seek.

"To a Land of Strangers." Tune of "Welcome, Wanderer, Welcome," by Ira D. Sankey. Gospel Hymns No. 5 and 6.

WORDS

1. To a land of strangers
   Fearfully we come.
   For a far voice called us,
   Called us to your home.

CHORUS—Welcome, stranger, welcome;
   Welcome to our shores.
   Thou hast come from lands afar,
   But our home is yours.

2. We have left behind us
   Many a loved one;
   And our hearts are lonely,
   As to you we come.—CHO.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

We here highly resolve
That these dead shall not die in vain,
That this nation under God,
Shall have a new birth of freedom,
And that the government
Of the people,
By the people,
For the people,
Shall not perish from the earth.

—President Lincoln at Gettysburg

THE TWELFTH DAY OF FEBRUARY will be the birthday of ABRAHAM LINCOLN. We ask churches to remember the LINCOLN OFFERING on the 11th of this month. We hope that many a discourse on that day will recall, especially for our youth, the inspirational life of this great man. Well did President Taft, in a recent address, call him "one of two great Americans."

"With his love of truth, the supreme trait of his intellect, accompanied by a conscience that insisted on the right as he knew it, with a great heart full of tenderness, we have the combination that made Lincoln one of the two greatest Americans." Col. Watterson, on the same occasion said:

"Reviled even as the Man of Galilee, slain even as the Man of Galilee, yet as gentle and unoffending, a man who died for men! Roll the stone from the grave and what shall we see? Just an American. The Declaration of Independence his Confession of Faith. The Constitution of the United States his Ark and Covenant of Liberty. The Union his redoubt, the flag his shibboleth. Called like one of old, within a handful of years he rose at a supreme moment to supreme command, fulfilled the law of his being, and passed from the scene an exhalation of the dawn of freedom. We may still hear his cheery voice bidding us be of good heart, sure that 'right makes might,' entreating us to pursue 'with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right.'

"The problems he met and solved are problems no longer. Other, it may be greater, problems rise before us. Shall there arise another Lincoln?"

"Firm with the powerful, gentle with the weak,
His was the sweetness of the strong! His voice
Took tenderness in speech with little folk,
And he was pitiful of man and brute.
So, for the struggle with high things of state,
He strengthened his own heart with kindly deeds—
His own heart strengthened for stern acts of power
That, fashioned in the secret place of thought,
And in the lonely and the silent shrine
Of conscience, came momentus on the world:
Built stronger the foundations of the State;
Upheld the word of honor, no whit less
'Twixt nation and nation then 'twixt man and man;
Held righteousness the one law of the world,
And higher set the hopes of all mankind."

"Crowned with the prairie flowers of the West and with all their freshness, this grotesque backwoodsman, with no patent but his own nature, with no diploma but his own record, walked into the surprised province of the world's pantheon of great men with credentials that could not be challenged or disallowed."

A NOTABLE MONTH

By C. J. Ryder

FEBRUARY, 1912, is to be a notable month in the history of our Sunday-schools. By an adjustment of our joint missionary work of the Societies, it is to be devoted to the study of the AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION. Two national anniversaries come within this month, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, February 12th, and the birthday of George Washington, February 22d. It is especially appropriate that our great missionary organization, the American Missionary Association, the work of which so intimately relates to the questions of patriotism as well as those of Christian progress, should receive the study and attention of our Sunday-school teachers, officers and pupils, during the Sabbaths of this month.

On February 11th Lincoln Memorial Sunday is to be observed. This has been a special day in the calendar of our Sunday-schools for some years. In 1911 it was estimated that 120,000 of our loyal Sunday-school members kept the day. This year, 1912, a new and fresh exercise has been prepared by Mrs. W. J. Long, which will add greatly to the interest of this anniversary day. The entire exercise will occupy only a few minutes and may be used in any Sunday-school at the opening or closing of the service. It should be a great day in the study and cultivation of Christian Patriotism.

"A Scheme for Study and Help," presenting a topic for consideration on each Sabbath, has also been prepared by the Association. This Scheme presents for Sunday, February 4th, the life and development among the Negroes; for Sunday, February 11th, the life and work among the mountain people or American Highlanders. These represented the "common people" of Abraham Lincoln of whom he never tired of talking with peculiar sympathy and satisfaction. For this Sunday the Lincoln Memorial Exercise is especially appropriate, although it may be used any Sunday of the month. Sunday, February 18th, the Red people of the prairies and the Yellow people of the Pacific Slope furnish a most interesting topic of study. These Indian tribes among whom the A. M. A. has work, number twenty-two outstations and churches, and three schools. The Eskimos, the Chinese, Japanese and Hindus of the far north and west add picturesque and important elements in the study of these peoples.

Sunday, February 25th, the picturesque people and unique work in the Island Territories present a most attractive chapter of national development and of Christian responsibility to our Sunday-schools never till recently coming within the scope of our duty and opportunity.

The study for these four Sundays is peculiarly attractive and must prove valuable to all the members of our Sunday-schools interested in these great national and Christian problems in the work of the century which lie in the field of the American Missionary Association.

How may this interesting material be secured is a natural question. By writing to any one of the offices of the American Missionary Association, the material will be sent on request. In connection with the "Scheme for Study and Help," a list of leaflets is published from which superintendents may select such as they would like to use during the month. Samples have been sent to all superintendents.

Lincoln banks or envelopes will also be furnished in such quantities as schools may need. The collection gathered may be devoted to any general department of the A. M. A. field as the Negroes, Highlanders or others, and when thus contributed to the work of the Association may be accredited on the apportionment of the church. The arrangement of our churches in adopting this plan contemplates that the collections for the four Sabbaths from the Sunday-schools will go to the work of the American Missionary Association.

We suggest to superintendents that they order the material as early as possible. Let us throughout the nation keep this interesting, patriotic and Christian anniversary and help forward the great work to be accomplished in the field of the American Missionary Association in behalf of the many millions of young people and children included within this field by a large and generous collection.

CONCERT EXERCISE FOR LINCOLN MEMORIAL SUNDAY

FEBRUARY, 11, 1912

HYMN: "Love divine, all love excelling."

RESPONSIVE READING: Matt. 11:2-17.

Superintendent: Now when John had heard in the prison the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples, and said unto him, "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?"

School: Jesus answered and said unto them, "Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see: the blind receive their sight, and the lame walk; the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear; the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them."

PRAYER:

Superintendent: To-day we commemorate the birth of Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States. We will not dwell upon the poverty of the little cabin in Hardin County, Kentucky, in which he was born, one hundred and three years ago; nor upon the successive struggles through which he made himself the fit leader of the nation, when the very Union of our United States was threatened. Rather will we turn our thoughts to the unfinished work that Lincoln left for us to do. Let us read together part of the Gettysburg address.

School: "It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Superintendent: When Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, January

1st, 1863, he made free 4,000,000 Negroes. They were poor, ignorant and untrained. In some states it was against the law for masters or mistresses to teach their slaves to read and write. Needless to say, these slaves knew nothing of their "inalienable rights, to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

School: The American Missionary Association set itself the task of educating these freedmen. They founded schools where, along with their book learning, the Negro boys were taught farming and the trades, and the Negro girls were taught all sorts of housework. To-day the graduates of their schools have found places of trust in all the industries and professions of the country.

Superintendent: Closer to Lincoln than the Negroes, whom he freed, are the American Highlanders, among whom he was born. The Highlanders occupy the mountain regions of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, and North Carolina. There are two million of these people. They withdrew to the mountains largely because they hated slavery. During the civil war 170,000 of them fought valiantly in the Union Army. These people have been shut off from schools and churches for generations, and have become poor and ignorant. They have ability; all they need is opportunity.

School: The American Missionary Association has planted fifty churches and ten schools in the Highlands, and the boys and girls walk miles over the hills in their eagerness for an education. There are no truant officers for these schools. They are not needed.

Superintendent: What the American Missionary Association does for the Negro and the Highlander, it does also for the American Indians, the Eskimos of Alaska, the Porto Ricans, the Japanese and Chinese on our western coast, and the people of Hawaii. Side by side it builds schools, churches and homes, and educates in Christian citizenship the millions of dark-skinned races that live under our flag. It is our work that the American Missionary Association is doing. Shall we not give our money, that the great work may grow till all our brothers throughout the Nation, from the Atlantic to Hawaii, and from Alaska to Porto Rico, shall know the truth, and the truth shall make them free?

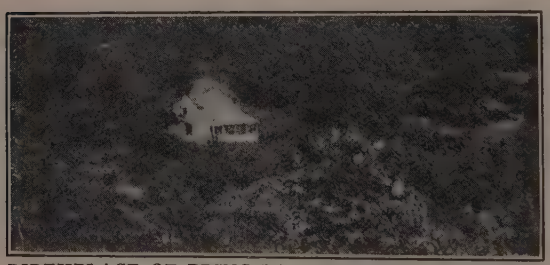
HYMN: "Fling out the Banner."

OFFERTORY: "We give Thee but thine own."

HYMN: "America."

ONE INFLUENCE OF AN A. M. A. SCHOOL

[Principal T. S. Inborden of the Joseph K. Brick School, at Enfield, North Carolina, has directed the school farm of more than a thousand acres for some fifteen years. The influence of this model farm worked by colored students has spread throughout three counties. Professor Inborden tells this story.]



BIRTHPLACE OF PRINCIPAL INBORDEN AND HOME OF HIS YOUTH, LOUDON COUNTY, VA.

IN a recent meeting of Negro farmers, investigation was made, and it was found that fifty-six per cent. of those present had their own farms and seventy-five per cent. of them owned their own teams. These farms have a great many things of value which I cannot mention. On a recent visit through Halifax County, I saw great flocks of sheep, geese, turkeys, guineas, chickens and many colonies of bees. I saw yards and gardens that would take prizes for cleanliness and neatness, anywhere. The floors, chairs and other house furniture were as clean as soap and water could make them. In many cases, the houses had been painted or whitewashed outside and lathed and plastered inside. In some few instances, the Negroes are connected with the central telephone exchange; are subscribers to their church papers, and many of them take several agricultural papers. They are reading and learning to think for themselves, and the result of this is put into their life and work.

I am speaking particularly with reference to those who own their own farms and homes. Share croppers and renters will not take care of other people's property as they would their own. It is not human nature for them to do so. It is the exception when they do, and then they must know that they will have an indefinite tenure. The story of how these Negroes got hold of this land is very interesting.

HOME OF NEGRO FARMER, VICINITY OF J. K. BRICK SCHOOL. OWNS 182 ACRES

Here is a man who has two farms of 182 acres. He has a six-room, weather-boarded house on each farm, and has all the necessary farm houses for his stock, tools and farm utensils. He has on one of the farms a store from which he furnishes the immediate community small supplies. He works three horses, and has in his family eleven children. His house is painted white, with green blinds on the windows, and he has many varieties of flowers and shrubbery about the yard. One of his sons lives on one of the farms, and the father lives on the other farm, and both are in splendid homes. Nothing contributes to their citizenship more than the fact that they have good homes.

Further along the same road I met another farmer, Mr. Richard Sanders. I asked him if he cared if I used his name in connection with a short article I was writing, he said, "No, use my name if you wish. I have a farm of 36 acres, bought and paid for by the sweat of my own brow and I am not ashamed of it." His house was modern in every way. It had six rooms, was painted white and had a good wide porch and a fence around the yard. There were magnolia trees, crape myrtle and other shrubbery in the yard. He has a number of houses for his stock, tools and farm supplies. He also has a small store and owns a private school house for his own children. His crops were absolutely clean of weeds and his ditch banks were a model of cleanliness.

Here is another farm owned by a man who has a six-room, two-story house. This farmer has three horses and 145 acres of land under very fine state of cultivation. He has all the necessary out buildings for his use and a secret order hall near the public road for the convenience of its members.

Here is another farm of forty-five acres owned by a young man who lives in a six-room house which is finished in good style. He owns two horses and has in his family seven children. Adjoining this farm is another farm of 33 acres. This farm was a part of a six-hundred-acre tract of land which was formerly owned by this farmer's master. A few years ago the old master died, and because of this colored man's loyalty to him all these years since freedom, he gave him this home and thirty-three acres. He has built his house similar to the best houses in the community and planted a fine orchard of apple, peach, pear, fig and plum trees about the place. He works two horses and has a number of children. He lives about four miles from town and is counted as one of the best citizens in the community.

Several years ago a certain tract of land was to be sold about seven miles away from the town of Enfield to a white gentleman with the understanding that, if again sold, certain colored men who wanted land were to be given a chance to buy it. Almost the same day one tract of 92 acres was sold to a colored man on four years' time. Before the time was out, the amount of eleven hundred dollars was paid, and to-day, that farmer has made improvements, and has one of the best farms in his community. Last year, this man paid five hundred dollars for a pair of mules and he told me recently that he expected to sell this year (1911) seventeen hundred dollars worth of cotton. He has grown on his farm other things besides cotton; such as corn, potatoes, peanuts, peas, watermelons and other things. He is also interested in a saw-mill.

Two years ago another man who had been working as a share cropper, bought 80 acres of the same tract of land, paying for it eight hundred dollars cash. He has since made good improvements and would not sell it for double what he paid for it.

In the same community, about four years ago, a two-thousand acre tract was sold to a company of Negro farmers. A few months after the land was bought by these men, a lumber company ran a log road through the farm and bought the timber on it. The farm was bought on time, but when the timber was sold it enabled the men to make the last payment at once of the entire tract of two-thousand acres. The woods and swamps are being cleared all over this large farm and log houses, probably fifty of them will, this fall or very soon, give way to neat cottages. I visited the farm recently and was told to drive two miles east from the public road and as many miles north and I would still be on this great farm. I was told by a very prominent white gentleman who is well acquainted with the community, that none of the Negroes who own the farm are educated, but they were all shrewd and honest men who knew how to make a bargain. The farm, as I saw it, was under a fine state of cultivation.

Fifteen years ago a man with a large family moved on the Brick School farm as a renter. He had never farmed, unless he had some one to "run him," that is, some one to take a mortgage on his horses and crops for family provision and farm supplies until the crop was ready to be put on the market. When he had been on our farm six months he told me that since the school made no cash advances to its renters and that since he had to "run himself," that it had cost him one hundred dollars less to live up to that time than any year since he had been farming. He was a man who liked to have a good time with his friends and he was fond of toddy. The school farm restrictions were such that he could not live on the farm, keep up these habits and be honest. He moved to another farm. Then he began to think that the restrictions were right. The more he thought about it the more he fell under his best convictions. He quit his habits and joined the church. To-day he lives on his own farm of two hundred and twenty-two acres. He has four horses, seven cows, a great many hogs, a cotton gin and engine. When I was at his home some weeks ago, he had just placed an order for a saw mill. He lives in a log house which he expects to replace when he gets his saw mill so that he can saw his own lumber. He had seven years in which to pay for his farm, but he made the last payment on it in five years. He has a fine crop this year and has planted a fine orchard. He has also built a number of farm houses for his stock and tools. He told me that he had not tasted a drop of whiskey in ten years. This is part of the secret.

HOME OF NEGRO FARMER, VICINITY OF J. K. BRICK SCHOOL, N. C. OWNS 222 ACRES

Here is another farm owned by Mr. Hilliard Phillips. This farmer lives just across the line in Nash County. The story would be incomplete without reference to what he has done. He is probably the most unique character in the community in which he lives. When the school was organized sixteen years ago I made it my business to visit the Negro farmers in the various sections of Edgecombe County to find out for myself their progress and their possibilities. I found this farmer some twelve miles down in the county. He was little different from many others whom I visited, except that he was more positive in his conceptions and was absolutely honest. His philosophy was quite original and equally sound. By getting him to put two of his children in the Brick School I was brought more into contact with him. I learned him better. He was a good renter and had rented since freedom. On one occasion he tried to buy a farm, but this was in a community where the health of his family was very poor and he gave it up on account of discouragement. I persuaded him that he could buy as well as rent if he found the right man from whom to buy. I believed there were many good white men in the community who would be glad to sell him a small farm. It took him several years to find the right place and he was four years paying for his farm. He has a five-room house in which he lives and has built several more houses on his farm in which his married sons live. His farm has in it 103 acres. When he bought it, it was very poor. I remember hearing him ask Dr. Taite Butler who was assisting us in our farmers' meeting some years ago, how to take an old worn-out farm and make it pay for itself. Dr. Taite Butler replied, "rotate." "What do you mean by 'rotate,'" asked the old gentleman. If you ask him to-day how he paid for his farm he will tell you that Dr. Taite Butler's "Rotation" paid for it. I said that he was then not very different from many other Negroes in his community; to-day he would not smoke the best cigar made, nor drink the most tempting glass of whiskey that could be produced. Turning away from his old habits sixteen years ago, has given his body stability, his mind poise, his family a home, and has made him one of the best citizens in the community. He does not know one letter from another, but his advice is sought by old and young; by the read as well as the unread. Remember he is nearly seventy-five years old, and has made this wonderful progress during the last years of his life.

FACTS FROM THE 1910 CENSUS

By H. Paul Douglass, Secretary

IN a recent issue of this magazine, we noted certain information concerning the American Negro furnished by the incomplete returns of the new census and ventured certain forecasts, some of which have had interesting confirmation as additional data filters in.

Indicating the revulsion of the Negro population from the border states, we guessed that one or more of these states, where the relative increase in Negro population has been very slow in recent years, would show actual decrease for the last decade. The recent census bulletins show that three of these states actually lost Negro population as follows:

Maryland	1.2%
Tennessee	1.5%
Kentucky	8.1%

Old Virginia just squeezed through with a gain of 1.6%, but most of her counties continued to lose Negroes, the gains being confined to a few urban centers. The bearing upon politics of these removals from the border states is obvious. Policies based on the assumed fear of Negro domination, and movements for limiting Negro suffrage will have less excuse the smaller Negro population bulks in a given state. It will be interesting to note also whether this decrease in population will be followed by a farther relaxation of the "color line," which has often been defended by the South on the grounds that the immense number of Negroes made separation necessary in public conveyances, etc.

Farther confirmation of the notable trend of the Negro toward the North is found in the announcement that the gains in that section have been 18.4%, or 5% more than the general increase in Negro population. One million, seventy-eight thousand. nine hundred and four American Negroes now live outside the South. New York City has 97,659, an increase of 30,000 in a decade. This makes New York's Negro population close to that of New Orleans; and these cities with Washington are the chief urban centers of the American Negro.

Newly available data as to the increase in Negro farmers emphasizes the re-assuring tendencies which the first announcements conveyed. Georgia has 39,915 more farmers than in 1900; this is a relative gain of 5% and an absolute gain of 29% for a decade. They constitute 42% of all the farmers in the state. Alabama's Negro farmers also constitute 42% of the farmers in that state, and have gained 16.2% in ten years.

It is plain enough that these gains bring new demands upon the feeble and already overburdened rural public school systems in the South and that they strongly emphasize the need of the missionary school and the missionary church in the country districts.

FROM PORTO RICO

Jane A. McLiver

GAMBLING is an inherited vice, practiced especially at cock fights where groups of men gather. Boys have even gambled with paper roosters in my Sunday-school. Before I knew them well, I thought they were playing with paper. Ramond, a little fellow who lives back of our church, said to his mother, "I give you these two oranges and one cent if you will let me to go to the Senorita's Sunday school." She let him go, although the priest would bring her to task for doing so, but he came hoping to get a chance to gamble with paper roosters.

The people are poor, because they waste, and throw away more pennies than you and I. Wages are high, but food is very high there now, and property has more than doubled in value. Even the rustic native shacks which were made of palms are now made of boards or packing boxes, the latter often with the shipment lettering on them. You see these shacks dotted everywhere, and it is funny as you pass to see them labelled "Glass, handle with care" or "Pears soap," and dozens of dirty, ragged and unclothed children playing around and screaming "Americana" as you approach.

The change in educational advantages is shown in the following contrast. From one public school building in 1899, and two-thirds of the population illiterate, there are now 2,792 public schools more than full, and 124,000 children enjoying free schools provided by the U. S. Government. These schools range in training from the kindergarten, to a well equipped and most excellent normal school, also an agricultural and industrial school for boys.

But there are now 39 Protestant mission schools with 2,171 children attending, where truth and morals are first. Each year the number of mission schools grows less, because the public schools meet more largely the educational need, and the missionary money can be used to better advantage in schools for distinctive mission training, in orphanages and also in hospitals. Our Methodist brethren have instruction in these lines, in beautiful and capacious buildings, and our Presbyterian co-workers have two finely equipped hospitals with dispensaries at different points. The Christian Church has two well managed orphanages, and the Baptists have a Theological Seminary. It should be borne in mind that each denomination is working in its own assigned section of the Island. You ask, "What have the Congregationalists?" We have our one school, the Blanche Kellogg Institute at Santurce, now a local day school, which is to be developed into a boarding school just as soon as there is sufficient money provided to meet the greater expense of this kind of an institution. A medical work has been initiated in our Humacao District, but is yet lacking its hospital building. And we have a most encouraging church and evangelistic work which is retarded only by lack of funds to provide necessary chapels and missionaries.

The greater part of the Porto Ricans are "Spiritualists." They believe in evil spirits. The insane asylum I am told is filled with people who imagine they have the evil spirit. Witchcraft is prevalent. Witches have the power, they think, to send the spirit of death or of starvation into any one. A servant gets angry and will stick pins in a candle, each pin for some offence and with a curse upon the mistress.

There are 186 Protestant Evangelical churches, eleven of which are Congregational. We have two church buildings and two chapels in our Humacao and Fajardo Districts in the eastern end of the Island, while the Methodists and Presbyterians have almost 100 in their district. Chapels are needed in order to establish our work, and show our Roman Catholic friends that we have come to stay. In Luquillo, a growing town eight miles from Fajardo, where, for five years I have held mission meetings, the work is waning for the want of a chapel. One of the best sites was given three years ago on condition that a chapel be erected. If the chapel is not begun in the near future the land will be given to the Roman Catholics, which will be a final death blow to our Protestant cause in Luquillo. Has not some good friend of the American Missionary Association enough of the Lord's silver and gold, in trust, from which to make an extra offering to save this work?

There has been a great work done in Fajardo, a church solidly built on the truth, this Book. There are 150 members, many of whose lives are transformed, and their homes too, and they go out to save others. They know and love the Bible. They daily study it as their source of life. Six united with the church two weeks ago. Carmen Jiminez, one of the women who entered, has been visited and taught for two years by one of our members. She had a Catholic catechism and she compared it with the Bible. She was convinced, convicted and converted. Her testimony is wonderful. Domingo Garcia, one of our converts and church members, had a small store and sold liquor. Dr. Edwards said, "You cannot sell liquor and remain in the church." He not only sold his business, but he is now selling Bibles in addition to his new business and gives the proceeds to the church, besides his tenth. From a poor, disinterested ignorant man, he is growing step by step to be an enlightened, tactful, volunteer worker. Porto Rico, as it will be, depends on God's own people. Through their burdened prayers and gifts, chapels will be built, institutions will be founded and sustained, where the young will be educated in the truth, and thus become loyal citizens of the United States and citizens of Christ's kingdom.

TIDINGS FROM TALLADEGA

REV. WILLIAM H. HOLLOWAY, who for twelve years has been an earnest and faithful pastor of Bethany Church at Thomasville, Ga., which is closely associated with our Allen Normal School, has been appointed Field Representative for Talladega College. Mr. Holloway's experience and success in rural church work has eminently fitted him to take up the work of visiting and stimulating the churches in Alabama to the end that they may apply themselves with new purpose and vigor to help on the work of generally educating college students, especially as the need is so great for Christian churches. In a circular to Talladega Alumni from which we quote, he says, "We have a crowded school this year. Nearly every seat is taken at several exercises every day, and I am writing you a personal letter about it. Do you know that Talladega's curriculum is as high as that of any other Negro college in the South? Do you know that we have continued to raise our course until it measures up to the Carnegie Foundation standard? Do you know that we have the largest endowment of any of our schools, lacking only $15,000 to enable us to get on the Carnegie Pension Fund? We are prepared to do a better college work than most of our Negro colleges. Why should we not have more college students? I have set myself the task of securing at least twenty-five freshmen for the class entering 1912. We want pupils who can pay, but if you have a bright, hard-working young person who is deserving but needs some help, put me in touch with him so that I may help you with him."

Talladega College is the only institution for Negroes with college grade in the great state of Alabama.

If you will review the history of human progress from the Christian era to the present day you will find that it has always proceeded according to this principle. Wherever individual men have been reborn, and have come into the life of Christ, and have lived that life loyally and sacrificially, there social advancement has been made. Old abuses have given way, despotisms have fallen, poverty, ignorance and human woe have relaxed their grasp, wherever this Christ-life has been in exhibition.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mob Murders

"Mob-murders will not be ended by platitudes; they will not be thwarted by appealing to a community not to disgrace itself, nor by declaiming on the lapse from civilization which they signify. The only efficient 'riot act' which can be read to the lynching spirit, either in the hearts of the men who join the mob or of the men who sit at home and approve the deed, is the grim, prophetic proclamation that it outrages God—the same ancient denunciation of sin to whose resounding tones of judgment the conscience in every man is inevitably attuned to tremble. This is what Americans must come to before the atrocities of lynch law are stamped out from American communities—the conviction not merely that it is a 'blot on civilization,' but that, infinitely more momentous, it is a sin against God. That realized, 'extenuating circumstances' disappear. The brutality of the criminal, the devilishness of his offence, the helplessness of his victim, averting peril of future crime—none of these then are excuses. The lynch act is a sin; nothing can make it right. On the very surface of the universally recognized teaching of Jesus Christ—the brotherhood of man—lies an unmistakable demonstration of the utter wickedness of every violent act done in hatred toward any human being whomsoever, even though the basest. Not only is the violence wicked, but the hate itself is a sin. No other teaching of the Master is plainer than that. No other utterance in his name should be more clarion-clear than that."—The Continent, Chicago.

We give below a statement of the receipts from donations and legacies for the month of December compared with December of the previous year; also the receipts from the same sources for the three months of the fiscal year to December 31st—the first quarter of our fiscal year or fourth quarter of the calendar year. We give this statement of receipts for the three months divided into two parts—one part showing the available receipts for regular appropriations and the other part showing special receipts designated by contributors for objects outside of the regular appropriations.

The donations for appropriations, or apportionment, for the three months from the churches show an increase of $3,120.11 as compared with the previous year. The special church contributions were $1,920.13 less than last year. This is encouraging evidence that the churches are contributing more directly for the apportionment for the support of the Association instead of for special objects additional to the apportionment. The accompanying thermometer indicates the progress the churches are making in collecting the apportionment of $62,500.00 for the first quarter of the fiscal year of the Association.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BUILDING SOCIETY

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Corresponding Secretary, Charles H. Richards, D.D.; Treasurer, Charles E. Hope. Field Secretaries, William W. Newell, D.D.; 19 S. La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.; New England office, Room 611, Congregational House, Boston, Mass.; Rev. H. H. Wikoff, Mechanics Bank Building, San Francisco, Cal.; Assistant Field Secretary, Mrs. C. H. Taintor, Clinton, Conn.

THE STORY OF THE YEAR

WE are glad to report that we have had in this Society a good year. Our receipts for the year were $269,907.72, which is $3,953 more than we received in the preceding year. We have had an increase in the number of churches we have helped to complete; an increase in the number of parsonages built by our aid; and an increase in the number of applications asking our assistance. We have put into churches and parsonages $51,739 more than in the preceding year.

Our grants and loans have been paid to 136 churches in 32 states. The work has been as broad as the nation, and in every part of the land. We have assisted in completing in New England nine churches and four parsonages; in the Middle Atlantic States eleven churches; in the South seven churches; in the Interior district (comprising fifteen states and territories) forty-five churches and fourteen parsonages; and in the Pacific district thirty-six churches and eleven parsonages. Six of these appropriations were supplemental payments, leaving the number of buildings which we have helped to complete ninety-nine houses of worship and twenty-nine parsonages.

Our "farthest north" was in Bainville, Montana, the southern terminal of the Bainville and Plentywood branch of the Great Northern Railway. Ours is the only Protestant church in a community of five hundred people. Our "farthest south" was in Florida, where at Sanford we enabled the church to dedicate an excellent house of worship, while we also enabled a close neighbor at Cameron City to secure a building in which a noble veteran minister (Dr. Joel Swartz) is preaching with all his old-time effectiveness at the ripe age of eighty-four. Our "farthest east" was at East Millinocket, Maine, where we completed the financing of an excellent church in that interesting new lumbering and manufacturing town. Our "farthest west" was Portland, Oregon, where we helped the Sunnyside Church, which we had aided many years ago, to complete a fine new house of worship in a thickly settled part of that city where it has attained great influence.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, BRANTFORD, N. D.

Between these four points of the compass in twenty-eight other states and territories, we have helped the churches to pay last bills on church and pastor's homes, leaving them out of debt except to this Society in case of a loan.

A CITY MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Much of our effort has been to assist young and needy churches in small communities where there is no other religious organization. In the early years of this Society this was the chief object of its work, and it is still of great importance. But in the change caused by the new industrialism, which has transformed us from an agricultural to a densely urban people, the enormous growth of the cities has created an imperative demand for greatly increased Christian work in great centers of population far beyond the ability of existing churches in them to care for alone. City Missionary Societies have been formed in many cities and they have admirably grappled with the new task. But it is too much for them alone, and they are constantly asking our co-operation. Our Loan Fund enables us to render much assistance here, and the number of city churches aided by us, and the amount of money we have put into them, make this Society the greatest of all the city missionary societies. Thirty-one of the churches to which our appropriations were paid last year were in cities with a population of from 10,000 to more than 2,000,000. Of the more than one hundred churches whose applications are on our January docket, fifty-seven are city churches where our assistance seems imperative. We received last year in repaid installments of former loans $120,578; and in legacies $20,543, which went immediately into our Loan Fund for the relief of churches applying for our aid. This loan money enabled us to do much toward solving this city problem.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, ELLIS, KANS.

OTHER INTERESTING FEATURES.

Another interesting feature in our work is found in the assistance we give to those of other races or other tongues than our own. Last year we helped to complete five houses of worship for colored people, two for Indians, three for Germans, two for Swedes, and others for Armenians, Danes, Welsh, Mexicans and Norwegians, besides a parsonage for a Danish church in Connecticut, and another for a German church in Colorado.

We are always glad when we have an opportunity to help a church at the door of an educational institution. We had such an opportunity last year in Thorsby, Alabama, where our church has large influence over the students of Thorsby Academy. We had another in East Lansing, Michigan, where the Michigan Agricultural College, with 1,400 students, dominates the entire community, and its professors and pupils make up most of the congregation. We had still another in Grand Forks, North Dakota, where our church, organized many years ago, was thought to be dead but had a resurrection, and now prospers in an attractive new house of worship in convenient proximity to the State University. Several others in college towns, although less closely related to the colleges, were aided by us.

One case of unique interest was found in Great Falls, Montana, where our church, more than twenty years old, had been languishing because its temple was a poor little shack, in striking contrast with the other churches in the city of more than 20,000 people. It is one of the most important and promising cities in the far Northwest. With a water power second only to Niagara, and the second greatest smelter in the country, surrounded by splendid farms, great ranches and new irrigation plants, this growing city bids fair to have a great future. Our church ought to have great influence in moulding its life. With rare courage and self-sacrifice the people determined to build a $30,000 church and ended by securing a $40,000 plant. They never could have succeeded but for our generous aid, and the presence of Dr. Newell at the dedication.

The states that have drawn most heavily upon our resources during the past year have been North Dakota, where we have put $12,700 into nine churches and one parsonage; Montana, where we have put $23,150 into eleven churches and two parsonages; Washington, where we have put $23-410 into twelve churches and six parsonages; California, where we have put $36,225 into ten churches and three parsonages; and New York, where we have put into four churches $26,795, mostly in loans.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Looking at the development of this work since it began in 1853, we find that in the fifty-nine years of this Society's life we have helped to build 4,251 houses of worship and 1,149 parsonages. Five thousand and four hundred buildings for church use have been secured. The far-reaching character of the work is seen in the fact that it has been done in fifty-one states and territories and in the islands of the sea. The receipts for this work have been more than six and three-quarters of millions of dollars. This includes the repayment of loans, since they furnish available funds for half our current work. We have built up, out of legacies and special gifts for this purpose, loan funds of considerable size, there being about $800,000 in our Church Loan Fund and about $125,000 in our Parsonage Loan Fund. All of this is kept at work in the churches which we aid. There is not a dollar of it in New York except as it comes back month by month in installments of repayment, and it is sent out again on other errands of mercy as rapidly as possible. The Loan Funds are much too small. The repaid loans and legacies amounted to more than $140,000 last year, but the applications for aid in this form were for more than twice that amount.

A NEW FEATURE IN OUR WORK.

The past year is notable because of the successful inauguration of a new method in our work. While we undertake to pay only last bills, leaving the church free from debt except for our loan, it often happens that in the lapse of years extraordinary expenses come which the church meets by borrowing at the bank. Little by little the burden grows till it fetters and cripples the church. This often occurs while there is still part of an unpaid loan due to this Society. Dr. Newell, our Chicago Field Secretary, has taken up the task of rendering a fraternal service to such anxious and worried pastors and people, by encouraging them to rally all their forces, and in one brief and brilliant campaign sweep the entire burden away. We like to help those who help themselves and Dr. Newell shows the discouraged and perplexed how they can, if they will, pay all their indebtedness to us and to others, and be entirely free. He has had rare success in these efforts, raising last year nearly $75,000 of such debts, and has won the undying gratitude of the churches he has thus aided. This is a remarkably useful kind of service, and will be continued under his skilful guidance.

ROLL OF HONOR–HONORA DE BUSK

My family came to Colorado from Virginia in the seventies. I was born and reared on a Colorado ranch. In education I was a product of the Congregational school, as I graduated from Tillotson Academy and from Colorado College.

My secondary education would have been meager enough, and assuredly I would never have reached college but for the interest shown in me by those New West teachers whose lives were an inspiration, as their memory is a benediction.

Henry Evarts Gordon was our principal. I remember how he spent a night in prayer before organizing the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. forces of the school in a campaign for the conversion of fellow students, and how a third of the student body were converted during one spring term.

I remember how Alice Gordon Gulick and Frances Willard and Dr. Bliss spoke to us and thrilled us with interest in the work they were doing.

All my life I have lived among the Mexican people in southern Colorado and had spoken their language. I learned to love them and sorrow for their need. So it was natural that I should answer the call that came in my senior year for mission teachers for New Mexico, and go out to San Rafael next year.

I taught there three years, and was transferred to Seboyeta to begin, with my sister, the work of that mission. Like all the other workers, we must needs combine the helpfulness of teacher, evangelist, doctor, nurse and model housekeeper, with strongest emphasis on school.

There never had been a school out there before, and we divided classes with geometric precision, according to size, and announced our intention of staying there until superannuated.

In late winter, though, we became visiting nurses almost exclusively, for there were four successive epidemics, and we were out of reach of a doctor. When I, tired out, took scarlet fever, and our superintendent came across country and insisted on sending me to Albuquerque and a doctor, I rebelled. I insisted upon staying and dying with the rest of the folks. It appealed to me as being much more neighborly than going off for the help they might not have, and leaving them to die alone.

Dr. Heald argued, though, that if I went to a doctor I might get well and come back in time to help in a manner much more practical than that of adding to the already numerous funeral processions. Later I was glad I had taken his advice, for I got back in time for the diphtheria.

We did what we could, but there wasn't enough antitoxin to go round, and I might have been mobbed once had not the French priest, who was there on one of his periodical visits, taken my part vigorously.

I was nursing a very sick girl and refused to let the godparents come in to pronounce a blessing over her—a custom of theirs at death; I feared it might cost her life. I felt repaid for all the unpleasantness when the girl recovered. The priest joined us, too, in telling the people what contagion was, but one cannot undo the customs of centuries in a few weeks.

Our efforts to co-operate with the board of health authorities for a system of quarantine was almost a complete failure, though it led to beneficial results later. At the time, though, the authorities withdrew in disgust and I repented my having lived to stir up such tempests of anger in my strenuous efforts to do good.

We were sent off to health resorts—I to the Atlantic Coast. I distinctly remember our superintendent's telling me how glad we would be when I was two thousand miles away.

It was a rare privilege in the next three years to have the opportunity of meeting so many of our churches and women's societies in the East, and starting the fund for our Rio Grande Industrial School; and a greater joy still to see that school started, doing the work we had counted on, in the years since then. Its training of native workers will multiply many fold the efficiency of our work.

I am glad I could give my twenties to the New Mexico mission. Just as gladly would I have given all my life's succeeding years, if physical strength had allowed. I count it a privilege to have been one of the New Mexico working force, and their joys and griefs, their defeats and victories, are still my own.

DAY OF PRAYER

The 11th of this month will be observed as Day of Prayer for Colleges and College Students.

The selection of the second Sunday in February was made by the World's Christian Student Federation, and is gradually taking the place of the original Day of Prayer for Colleges which came on the last Thursday in January.

The advantage of using Sunday is obvious, in that the one theme of that day falls easily within the scope of truths treated by the Christian pulpit. Christian education is demanding more attention now than it has in the past, and the preparation of young men and women for the varieties of service in the Kingdom of God is more necessary than ever before, for the problems and exactions of such service are such as can be met only by trained workers. The church is now realizing this.

The avenues of approach to suffering and needy humanity have multiplied, and the different kinds of service to be rendered have developed so rapidly that the church is hardly awake to the change. It stands confused and irresolute amid the increasing demands of the hour.

This day, therefore, affords the church a mighty theme for prayer and meditation, and summons it to obey the injunction of the Lord:

"Pray ye therefore that the Lord of the harvest will send forth laborers into the harvest."

It is earnestly hoped that ministers will use this opportunity to set before their young people the variety of calls of Christian service in the Kingdom.

MISSIONARY AND EXTENSION DEPARTMENT

Office: Congregational House, Boston, Mass.

President, Rev. Frederick H. Page; Missionary and Extension Secretary, Rev. William Ewing, D.D.; Treasurer, Henry T. Richardson; District Secretaries: Rev. Robert W. Gammon, 19 S. La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.; Rev. Milton S. Littlefield, 155-80th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Educational Secretaries: For the Southwest, Rev. J. P. THE EIGHTIETH YEAR

With the 29th day of this month, the eightieth year of the Sunday-School Society closes. It is too early to give a statement of the work accomplished or the financial situation. It has, however, been a busy year. The new departure taken in reorganizing and strengthening the educational side of the work has been fully justified by the churches. The work in the West has lost none of its interest and enthusiasm. Earnest calls have come for enlarged service in the East. These have been partially met, and further extension is being arranged for.

More than ever before the work has become nation-wide. There is no single part of our land that has not need of more and better religious education.

The Society has striven earnestly to adhere to its time-honored policy of avoiding debt. The gifts of all its friends are earnestly needed in order that the year may be closed without a deficit. It is earnestly hoped that this may be done.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL OBJECTIVE

Calamity came to the King of Israel, who numbered his people—not because he numbered them, but because he had placed confidence in numbers rather than in that which was essential for success.

This same mistake has been a weakness in many Christian efforts. Those who are the most wisely and deeply interested in the Sunday-school work of to-day, are eager for extension, and placing it educationally upon a high plane. But over and above large numbers, educational equipment and educational attainment, they are placing, as the great objective, the development of Christian life and Christian character. If this is the aim of our great army of Sunday-school workers, the success of the year can be assured.

A GOOD WORKER RETIRES

Miss M. Alice Isely, who has rendered excellent service for the Sunday-School Society in Utah and Routt County, Colorado, has been obliged to devote herself to the care of her aged parents, and with very great regret, withdraws from the work. Miss Anna N. Lewis of Des Moines, Iowa, who has had wide experience in missionary work in Maine, and with the Woman's Home Missionary Association of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, takes her place.

CHICAGO CONFERENCE OF WORKERS

It has been the custom of the Society to call together its field representatives in different groups, about once in three years, for conference and inspiration. Such a call is issued for a Conference of Workers of the Interior, to be held in Chicago, March 17-24, which gives promise of being of much more than usual interest.

In addition to the ever-present missionary and educational interests, there are plans of administration which demand earnest attention. The educational specialists who have been employed, will meet with those whose large concerns have been with the pressing missionary and extension problems. It is expected that the influence of this Conference will be felt through the entire missionary force in strengthening the educational work, and at the same time bringing the work of the Society into the closest and most helpful relations with all the other great activities of the denomination.

The meetings of the Conference will be open, and any who are interested in the problems of religious education will be welcomed.

FIFTY YEARS WITHOUT A SUNDAY-SCHOOL

By Rev. M. C. Davis, Missionary in Oregon

Elk Creek has been settled for the past fifty years, and during that time, until we visited the neighborhood, they never had a Sunday-school or preaching service. Now the Bible is read and studied more than any other book.

Grandma Pence, the person who gave me these items, is seventy-one years old, and never attended a Sunday-school session until we organized there last summer. She has lived in Oregon thirty-seven years, and never saw anyone baptized until last Sunday. She never had the privilege of attending any preaching since coming to Oregon, until we held services. Her four sons, ranging from 21 to 47, witnessed their first baptism at the same time, and it was their first Sunday-school experience. All the members of this family and their children are greatly interested in the work, and I look for a great ingathering in the near future.

ELK CREEK SUNDAY-SCHOOL, OREGON

NOT HARDSHIPS, BUT EXPERIENCES

By Rev. James N. Pendleton, Missionary for Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho

I have again been into the Okanogan County, and made a fourteen days' horseback trip over nearly all of it. November is not the most pleasant month for a long trip like this, but I enjoyed every bit of it, getting into my saddle at 4:30 A. M., and covering seventeen miles before breakfast, and again riding through snow, sleet and rain storms and over mountains, through canyons, over blind trails, then again over fine roads, traveling some nights until eight o'clock, or three hours after dark.

Frequently I only got two meals a day, and once only one. I would sleep one night in a good hotel bed, and the next night in my clothes at a lone rancher's cabin.

I am not writing these as hardships, but as experiences. The only hardship was being where I could not get any message from home for nearly three weeks, and having to leave my wife at home alone with three babies, the youngest only two months old.

I found some very needy fields where work must be done, and owing to the opening of the railroad, this whole vast territory will have the greatest development in the next five years. I am anxious that our work should develop with the country, and that Jesus Christ may be given his rightful place, not alone in every new town, but in every heart.

HEROISM IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Rev. V. Vavrina writes: "I have more to do than I can well manage, to keep up five Missions and five Sunday-schools while trying to reach out for others, when everything is so far apart. Besides this, I have been almost forced to accept a place upon the School Board, which has oversight of ten schools spread over twelve counties. I get, of course, nothing for this work, but have almost been compelled to take it up in the interest of good schools."

Supt. Herrick writes: "I want you to notice the distances that have been made on horse-back in the stormy weather, by Mr. Vavrina, in the last month. I think his connection with the day schools will help in the Sunday-school work. I wish that at the Directors' meeting in Boston, a prayer might be lifted for God's blessing on these men of the frontier, facing storm and blizzard, and all the discomforts and dangers on behalf of the work given this Society to do. The work in Labrador is hardly more difficult or dangerous. When Mr. Haecker left me the other day, he had sixty or eighty miles to make with his team and it was snowing heavily. Can we not have some echo of this effort in our missionary work in the pages of THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY?"

OUR GERMAN BRETHREN

By Superintendent Herman Seil.

The month has been full of work, principally holding Mission festivals. In many instances our people in North and South Dakota were quite down hearted, and seriously thought of omitting the festivals this year, because of crop failure. But now they are glad that they are able still to recognize the providence of God in the dark as well as in the bright aspects of life. In two places where the thought of not celebrating had strongly taken root, the people laid over $400 for the Lord's work upon His altar, and this after three years of failure of harvest.

I have now been on the road for six weeks and feel very tired. The dedication of the new church in Scott's Bluff, Nebraska, was a success in every respect. It is a beautiful building, costing $4,100. The Sunday-school is in excellent condition. A new pastor, recently from Germany, has entered on the work with much enthusiasm.

A COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS

FOR THE TWELVE MONTHS OF 1910 AND 1911

	Churches	Individuals	Affl. Soc.	Interest	Legacies	Totals
1910....	$14,106.38	$15,012.62	$5,624.52	$8,443.99	$1,787.85	$44,975.36
1911.....	15,075.07	12,933.06	6,775.78	8,710.65	3,103.36	46,597.92
Gain.....	$ 968.69	.....	$1,151.26	$266.66	$1,315.51	$1,622.56
Loss.....		$2,079.56	.....	.....	.....	... .

This is a small gain over the former year. The entire loss is in individual gifts. This is probably accounted for by the fact that more individual givers requested that their gifts be credited to the churches of which they were members. In doing this the gift came under the church rather than under the name of the donor. In many cases individual givers asked that their gifts be credited to the Missionary Society of their church. This brought the gift under affiliated societies.

The gains in churches and affiliated societies, more than offset the loss from individual givers. There is, therefore, no loss but only a change of credits. We had hoped to attain an income of $50,000 in 1911, but fell short $3,402,08. By the grace of God, as shown through the benevolence of His children, we confidently expect to reach, and even go beyond that sum in 1912.

Still we do not forget that the past year has been one of the best in the history of the Board. The increase in receipts was $1,622.56. The Board provided for 159 pensioners, representing 325 dependent persons, in the sum of $25,732.75, the largest amount paid to pensioners in any year of its history. There was added to the Endowment Fund $14,035, that fund now standing, including a small cash balance awaiting investment and counting the securities at par, at $217,-751.54.

Eight of the Board's pensioners died during the year, the youngest fifty-eight and the oldest ninety-seven, their average ages being over seventy-six. Five of the pensioners being able to resume work or otherwise provided for will not renew their applications for 1912; their places, however, have been more than taken by new names added to the honorable roll of veterans at the Annual Meeting of the Board just held.

The Christmas Fund was the most successful of any year in the ten years since it was inaugurated. The Secretary asked for $1,500, and received $1,640.90. Checks in amounts of from five to twenty-five dollars were distributed to all the regular pensioners of the year.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER FOR HOME MISSIONS, FEB. 22, 1912

The last Thursday in February has come to be observed almost universally by women in all denominations as a Day of Prayer for Home Missions. The Council of Women for Home Missions has prepared an elaborate program suitable for services on this day. Part of this program is quoted below, but the auxiliaries are strongly urged to secure copies of the entire program in order that their meetings may be most effective. Programs may be obtained from the secretaries of the various State Unions, or from the Corresponding Secretary of the Federation, for 50 cents per hundred copies.

February is the month assigned to the Sunday-schools for the study of the American Missionary Association and for the gathering of a collection for its work. A scheme of study has been outlined by the A. M. A., presenting a different sphere of its work for each of the four Sundays. The program for Lincoln Memorial Sunday is printed in full in the A. M. A. pages of this issue. Interesting material on all the suggested topics may be obtained from the district offices of the A. M. A.

Give toward the support of the 343 foreign pastors working among their own people under Congregational auspices.

Plan to have this program given in your church either at the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society, the mid-week Prayer Meeting, or the Christian Endeavor.

Remember the words of Paul, "Be ye not conformed to this world but be ye transformed."

The words of a modern apostle, "The truth of this problem lies at the door of the church."

The words of Christ, "And I, if I be lifted up shall draw all men unto me."

The two schools (outside of Oberlin) for the training of foreigners for Christian work in which Congregationalists make their largest financial investments are American International College, Springfield, Mass., and Schauffler Training School, Cleveland, Ohio. The purpose of these schools is to raise up out of the immigrant races, and for them, intelligent and wise leaders in all the walks of life. In the students thus trained, the desire for social service among their own race is promoted. No work in America is more important or worthy of Christian benevolence, none more promising for Humanity, Fatherland, or Kingdom of God; besides sending back reflex and benign influences to the Old World, it stands for Character, Culture, Citizenship, and Christian Brotherhood.

CONGREGATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF AMERICA

The Congregational Brotherhood, on which the National Council has set its seal of approval, and which has stirred such a deep interest in hundreds of churches, will be heard from in these pages during the ensuing year.

The interesting little periodical, "The Brotherhood Era," which brought to us the record of progress in the work for men by men, is discontinued, and while we shall miss its spicy and suggestive pages, we shall be glad to find here the stirring story of an ever deepening and broadening work. Secretary H. A. Atkinson has had a special equipment for his task, and brings great enthusiasm to the effort to enlist all the men of our churches into organic union with each other, with the special aim of winning men and boys into Christian life and service, and applying the principles and ideals of Christ more thoroughly to the affairs of life.

This is, of course, the work of the church in its entirety. But the women, God bless them, have been more active and devoted than the men. There was need of such a special movement to arouse the slumbering talent and bring out the dormant energy of the men. The masculine vigor and the trained skill of the church is now summoned to full service. We want no "sleeping partners."

The Men and Religion Movement gives new emphasis and impetus to the work of the Brotherhood. It seeks to arouse and direct the men and boys of this country by an interdenominational campaign of education and inspiration. Its results will be conserved and put into practical service by the Brotherhoods of the several denominations. It furnishes a very definite and admirable program of work to which the man-power of the church may well address itself. (1) Bible-study. The soldier of the cross needs constant and thorough drill in the manual of arms if he is to do good work. (2) The Boy Problem. To understand boy-nature, to master the psychology of boy-life in its different periods, to secure an early enlistment in the Christian life of boys before they have been misled into false ways, to be "Big Brothers" to the boys to help them to the best and most satisfying life,—this is a task for men and boys together. (3) Social Service. To realize the brotherhood of all men, to find out what is wrong in present social conditions, to master the ethics of the gospel, to apply the principles of Jesus to everyday life, and get His spirit of sympathy and friendliness and justice at work everywhere,—this is a man's job. (4) Evangelism. Men and boys are to be convinced of the reality of religion, of the charm and power of Christ as Saviour and Master, of the glory and joy of chivalric self-sacrifice in the service of God and humanity. This is a "win one" campaign. Every member of the Brotherhood is to be an evangelist to persuade some other one into the true life. (5) Missions. The horizon is to be widened. Not only does the community need to be evangelized. The state, the nation, the world are to be the object of thought, study, prayer, effort and contributions, that they may be transformed by the power of Christ. This broad outlook is worthy the attention of men. Their missionary force ought to be harnessed to the great missionary endeavor to make it move forward to success. If all the men in our brotherhoods would get back of the Apportionment Plan, and bring their business skill and force to bear on the effort of securing in each church the amount called for in the apportionment, it would double the effectiveness of our missionary service.

NERVOUSNESS AND EXHAUSTION

When weary and languid, when the energies flag and you are completely exhausted and worn out, there is nothing so refreshing and invigorating as

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

(Non-Alcoholic.)

It is especially recommended for the relief of depression that accompanies exhaustion and nervousness and to strengthen and clear the brain that has become tired and confused by overwork or worry.

An Ideal Remedy in Nervous Disorders.
